FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Whitetail Club's Todd Bindner named Golf Pro of the Year by PGA's Rocky Mountain Section

MCCALL, Idaho (Jan. 12, 2011) — The golf course at Whitetail Club in McCall, Idaho, is renowned as one of the best in the country, and now so is its head pro, Todd Bindner. Last week the Professional Golfers' Association of America's Rocky Mountain Section named Bindner PGA Golf Professional of the Year.

The highest honor paid to a PGA professional, the award recognizes outstanding leadership abilities, exceptional performance as a PGA professional, and distinguished service to the association and the game of golf. He will be formally recognized at the Rocky Mountain Section's annual meeting in May.

Bindner — a 22-year member of the association who has served the Rocky Mountain Section as an officer since 2005 and is currently its president — is no stranger to PGA accolades. The Rocky Mountain Section named him Teacher of the Year in 1997 and 2001, Junior Golf Leader in 2008, and Assistant Golf Professional of the Year in 1990 and 1992.

He has served as Whitetail Club's head golf pro for the past two years and has earned multiple certifications from the Titleist Performance Institute and the National Academy of Sports Medicine. (No more than a handful of Gem State golf pros are TPI-certified instructors.) In addition, Bindner has been published in PGA Magazine and USA Today and has appeared on the Golf Channel. In 1993 he was named Big Sky Conference Women's Golf Coach of the Year during his 1992-1994 tenure as women's golf coach at Boise State University.

Whitetail Club rests on 1,300 stunning acres in McCall, Idaho, and is the area's only private club and community. Designed by Roger Packard and two-time U.S. Open winner Andy North, Whitetail's links are ranked by Golfweek Magazine as a Top 100 Best Course to Play in America. Also considered one of America's 100 Greatest Courses by Golf Digest Magazine and an important link in the Idaho Golf Trail, this 18-hole, par-72 course extends 7,200 yards. Whitetail Club maintains a driving range, putting practice greens, and chipping greens, as well as a 3,500-square-foot full-service clubhouse that boasts a pro shop, restaurant, lounge, outdoor patio, locker rooms, swing-training equipment and analysis tools, bag storage and stunning, panoramic views.

Guests at Whitetail Club's sister property, Shore Lodge, enjoy playing privileges at the course and can even schedule golf and fitness training sessions with Bindner. He expects increased demand for these services when Shore Lodge opens its new world-class spa and workout center in May.

With other first-class indoor and outdoor amenities like a 6,000-square-foot Fish & Swim Club, a 14,000-square-foot Tennis & Fitness Center, a mountain-top yurt with a fire pit and scenic valley overlook, 10 miles of paved walking paths, 5 miles of Nordic ski trails, immediate access to more than 500 miles of snowmobile trails, and entrée to the adjacent Shore Lodge's beach and marina, Whitetail Club offers unsurpassed mountain-lake living and year-round recreational opportunities for every age group.
